Now place these statements in the correct order of the events in the poem.

1

He called out, hoping to see the maiden.

He questions whether the bird is good or evil.

He thought the bird would leave just like others have left him alone before.

He heard a knocking sound at his window.

He met a mysterious bird that perched on the door of his room.

2

He became increasingly curious about what the bird meant by the word 'Nevermore'.

He was trying to distract himself with books from the loss of the maiden.

He opened the door but there was nobody there.

He marvelled at bird which flew into his room.

He felt a sense of terror as the wind ruffled the curtains.

3

He curses himself for grieving the maiden too much.

He became angry at the bird's response and wanted it to leave.

He met a mysterious bird which perched on the door of his room.

He thought the bird learned this one word from an unhappy master.

The bird refuses to leave his room.
